The full version, like Adobe Photoshop, is way too complicated for the average user. Photoshop Elements is as fast and easy to use as the most basic camera. Whether you need to create a new image, or have one to edit, Photoshop Elements has all the tools you need. And it's free. 2: Begin With a Pre-Modeled Reference Image Before you start working in Photoshop Elements, take a moment to create a pre-modeled reference image. This will allow you to see exactly what needs to be changed before you start editing. You can print the image or you can just view it in the phone's gallery. And it can be as simple or as complex as you want. You can also use a photo of the current lighting conditions. That will help you get closer to what you want. If you use an SLR you can also shoot your reference image and save it in multiple image format and sizes. This will make your life a lot easier when you need to edit the image later. 3: Select the Right Tool for the Job Photoshop Elements is a powerful tool that can do most of what Photoshop can do. But it's not as powerful or sophisticated as Photoshop. Check the features that matter for your project first. But there may be times that you'll need the few advanced features that Photoshop offers. You can add a mask and blend modes and use the adjustment brush. You can even add layers and layers masks. These features will dramatically speed up your work. You can also use the Spot Healing Brush. That allows you to quickly erase blemishes or touch up any subject. However, if you don't need to edit the image, you don't need any of that advanced stuff. 4: Convert Colors to Lighter or Darker Colors If you have a lot of colors but the image needs to be lighter or darker you may want to desaturate the image. This way you can quickly make it lighter or darker. 5: Make All Colors Look Similar If you want the colors of the image to be similar you can use the Local Adjust option. This lets you brighten up or darken down the whole image. If you don't need to modify the colors of the image you can simply Lighten or Darken the image. That will change the color but 05a79cecff
